DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

Claims 1-22 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

The "oxide electrode template," as recited in each of the independent claims, is not clear to the examiner. Does "template" mean that the shape of the oxide layer is the same as the shape of the overlying layer? (So if the oxide is a rectangular layer, then the overlying layer is the same shape and size rectangle?) Or does "template" mean that the crystal structure of the oxide is duplicated in the crystal structure of the overlying layer, as would occur in epitaxial growth? Both uses of the term "template" seem to occur in the art. The specification notes at the bottom of page 8 that there is substantially similar crystal structure between the oxide and the overlying layer, but it is not clear if this is required by the designation of "template."
